

Utility Assistance

Stay Healthy and Safe in Your Home

You or someone you know may be eligible for help with heating and/or cooling bills. Utility assistance:

- Helps you stay warm in the winter and cool in the summer.
- Reduces the risk of health and safety problems such as heat-related illness, fire, or eviction.
- Eases the financial burden of utility costs for low-income individuals and families.

Weatherization & Energy Audits

Weatherization Works!

Are Your Heating and Cooling Costs a Financial Burden?

You can permanently reduce bills for heating and cooling by making your home more energy efficient. The U.S. Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance Program increases energy efficiency for low-income households. Retro-fit conservation techniques are used to make older homes more affordable to heat and cool. To see if you qualify for assistance and to apply, download the application at www.esccswa.org.

Energy Audit

Want to make your home more energy efficient?

An energy audit is an assessment of the energy needs and efficiency of your home. It helps you as a homeowner determine where the house is losing energy and money. It can determine how to correct the energy loss and inefficiencies. Cost varies with size of home.
